FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

anticipations of a relaxation in the money arket within a reasonably brief period after the gh the falling in rates has been slow and grainal, owing to the greater demand for money from the greater volume of business at the eck Exchange. In fact, among the stock six per cent, with considerable ness at seven per cent. Some lenders, in their ire to place balances suddenly late in the day. nclined at the same time to take the usual per cent. As a rule, however, money was five to ax per cent on governments and six to seven on cts. The return of currency from the rural disther apprehension was entertained on the subt of a spring stringency induced fresh operations the Stock Exchange on the part of dealers who lety on this account, and also encouraged those advinterested to expand their lines. The result at s transacted, perhaps, since the spring of 1869, ces kept pace with this increased activity, and leading railway and miscellaneous shares hed not only the highest figures of the season, The market resembles in many features that was the leading card on account of the anpation, and eventually the declaration of a large divident, so Lake Shore is now in the throes nd agitation of a similar parturition; but how soon progeny is to be born is, like the extra dividend York Central, a mystery known only to minated. Saturday night seemed to have on fixed upon by a great many as the ecasion which was to witness the increase in the tock of Lake Snore, and if the report as generally seculated was the work of the clique it shows that vintend to pursue the same policy of "milking street" and blinding and confusing everybody the very moment the thing really takes place. if, on the other hand, the rumor was a device to get the street "short" again, through its very scepticism , for the "bears" immediately took fresh courage ed devoted all Saturday afternoon to putting out lative sales, induced thereto by the belief that the clique in starting such a rumor were getting ready to unload. Whatever the real designs of the ter it is very certain they have no intentions of bandoning their "bull" campaign, nor have the diques generally. "Milking" is such a profitable ation, however, and the assured ease of the ney market for the balance of the spring and for nummer has aroused so widespread a speculative lination on the part of the community at large that we may look for a great deal of the lacteal busiss until the cliques decide to wind up the camsign with a grand flourish, preparatory to unloadflually and placing themselves in position demolish the superstructure of rhich they have already carried so high. Not that there are not good investments in many direcad sincerely the intention of the cliques to produce dividends where none are now earned, or where it is contemplated to enlarge capital as an equivalent to increased earnings and reduced exditures-is was done with New York Centhe seeker for investments will a return for his money. But the dis-cernment regalshe to discover the exact cation of such attractive investments is not given to everybody, and hence we think the general public will have to do as they have often done before-viz.. exert the great American privilege of paying their ney and taking their choice. To those who love speculation in the stock market undoubted oppordties are gow afforded. The market is likewise a oblem for their solution, as, at its present stage, It is capable of a balloon-like inflation or a bubble

As generally expected the weekly state ment of ie associated banks proved quite favorable. Desite a contraction of over four and a baif millions in cans the deposits are down only about a million ollars, leaving the inference that the currency reipts from the interior during the week were about three and a half millions. Furthermore, as the average is a rising one, the situation of the banks is really better than exhibited by the statement, which is the average for six days. The specie item ws a gain of only $200,000 owing to the large cus toms payments of the week. The statement contracts with its predecessor as follows:-
